S. S. MARANDA, OF FRIENDLY ISLES, SOUTH PACIFIC OCEAN, May 25, 1886. [CONTINUED FROM LAST ISSUE.]

And I wonder that wise men are so slow to see what is going on around them. The day of belief, on the authority of the elders, is forever gone. Steam has atomized it off; electricity has dashed it away; independent investigation and the license of the printing press has reasoned and ridiculed it off its pedestal; and the growing spirit of scepticism has given the coup de grace. Rightly or wrongly, it is gone forever. We had better face the fact in time, and meet it before our fine boys and girls grow up ledels and go over to Col. Ingersoll in a body. I see the madness of obstinacy in parents, till I could shriek for very agony of apprehension as to results. O, my friends, you had better revise your own beliefs—received by "tradition from the elders," and often "making void the law of God," than to insist upon your children believing them because you do, and your father did in an age when such a plea is no longer, for a moment, tenable. How much wiser to agree with them to go over the whole ground, as improved, and step by step, at whatever cost, build up something that will satisfy these wildly earnest and far-reaching questions, that you can no more quell and curb than you can halt Niagara ten yards above the precipice.

I am returning home with the full conviction that all these queries can be fairly answered—as they certainly have not yet been—and the firm persuasion that until they are answered all expedients to allay the demands of this inquisitive age are vain in the end, and will only recoil in tenfold disaster. Taking this "ball by the horns" is the only fair method and the only one God will own and bless. And with what little "measure of the grace given to me" I may possess, I will drive at this one point till I get a hearing. I shall get one in the end I am sure, for the questions are such burning ones that even this hurry scurry age must halt now and then and listen to them. The reason they go hurrying by now without stopping is that all inquiry has been stifled or mocked thus far, and the poor world is weary of asking what is never fairly answered. "The fathers say," "it hath been said of old time," is the endless reiteration they are so impatient of. They know, what we old fogies are so slow to own, that the day of all that settlement by authority is forever gone.

But give them an answer to the question they ask and you will find them stop and listen eagerly. I do not know to what extent I can do this. I know what has given me rest, but it may fail in resting others. By God's grace I will tell it out as best I can. Already I see these three years are invaluable for the experience they have brought me. I could never have learned what I know now in the busy rush of constant evangelistic meetings. Whether I can speak it out in such a tone as to secure a hearing and gain assent, remains to be seen. I am trusting the dear LORD about it and He has never failed me yet. Nor do I believe He will now.

One of the thrilling excitements of my boyhood has lately been reawakened and I want to arouse the sympathy of my readers on the subject if I can.

We have most of us read in brief the romantic history of the mutineers of the ship "Bounty," dating in its sad beginnings as far back as 1789. How 25 of Capt. Bligh's crew, conspiring, overpowered the remaining 18, forced them, with the captain, into the ship's launch, with a limited supply of water and provisions, and cast them loose to make their way for 3,000 miles to the nearest abode of civilized men. The mutineers themselves sailed away to Orahete (or Tahiti, as now written), where 18 remained by their own choice, risking detection and punishment rather than to go further. Then, how the 18 remaining, pressed by fear, resolved to sail away to "parts unknown" and cover up all traces of their whereabouts; previously, having married Tahiti wives and persuaded 6 Tahiti men, three of them also with wives, to join them. How they made off in the Bounty and were no more heard of for 18 years. Then, how a vagrant ship, stopping in hope of getting a little water at an out-of-the-way island called Pitcairn, supposed to be uninhabited, made the astounding discovery that on that little speck in the ocean lived a community of English speaking men, women and children; 40 in number; in such a condition of millennial happiness, purity and simplicity that one can only regret, considering what has since happened, that they were ever discovered, if half their romantic story is true.

To dismiss the other romantic portion of the crew, who only turned out common criminals and came to a very unromantic end; three of them were hanged in England; three others pardoned; while ten perished in Tahiti in consequence of their villainous treatment of the simple-minded natives. The latter turned upon them in desperation at last and murdered the ruffians, who so maltreated them and especially their wives.

The 9 landed in Pitcairn in 1790, burned the Bounty, after getting out everything they could use, and there they were. Fletcher Christian, the ringleader of the mutineers, was one of these—the most daring and intelligent of the lot. I saw his grand daughter at service in Remuera chapel last Sunday morning, and shook hands with the grand son of another of the Pitcairn Islanders, who came to hear me preach at night. They were about what we used, in the days of slavery, to call quadroons; she a tall, queenly, graceful young woman, with attractive features and particularly brilliant eye; he a medium-sized young fellow, intelligent-looking and very like a Spaniard or Portuguese. She is assistant in one of the Auckland public schools, and he a casual visitor, having come over in the Norfolk Island schooner, that plies at rather long but regular intervals between there and New Zealand. But to continue the story begun above.

It appears that Fletcher Christian and his 8 English and 6 heathen comrades, having no "fear of the LORD" before their eyes, soon found that Pitcairn was anything but a Paradise. They soon "fell out by the way," quarrelled, fought and finally it came to murder and mutual purposes of extermination. The worst came on in consequence of the persistent tyranny of the whites over the blacks, and the murderous culmination, in the same maltreatment of the Tahiti wives, that had already cost their mutinous comrades their lives in the island they had left. The black fellows banded and conspired; murdered five of the whites and drove the other three, one of them severely wounded, into the "bush" of the mountain gullies back of the settlement. These, in turn, driven to desperation and more fertile in resource, and daringly courageous than the simple natives, managed to surprise the latter and murdered the whole six in a series of attacks.

Two remaining Englishmen, with 8 or 10 women and a growing community of children, led an uneasy and suspicious existence, and Satan still managed to sow discord, until the women, unable to endure the overbearing tyranny of the men, twice attempted to murder them. They were forgiven and life dragged on in the unrelent way, till one of these committed suicide in a fit of delirium tremens and two of the others agreed to kill the third, because he had threatened to slay them both. This half judicial execution, half murder, they accomplished by braining him with an axe. And now but two were left; and a final murder was only prevented by the death of one of these wretched survivors from consumption, brought on by exposure and neglect.

At this juncture the "last man," John Adams by name, found himself the nominal head of a community of 6 women and 20 children of differing ages, some of these latter already stalwart lads, growing up to a wild, untutored manhood, that gave promise of speedy trouble ahead, unless something was done to turn the dreary current of their hitherto hopeless history.

And here was the turning point. This lonely man did what so many miserable people have done in cruel straits—turned his despairing eyes Godward. This is the best answer to every phase of scepticism, viz: The simple fact that when the devil drives a poor soul to bay, at that worst point, often, where all hope seems gone, "man's extremity turns into God's opportunity" and Satan is balked of his prey. John Adams in his lonely wanderings on the craggy heights of that wave-beaten little island, found God (or "rather was found of God"), and gave himself to Him first for personal salvation; then for hourly guidance. Then he became by the logic of faith a zealous propagandist. The fullness of his new life he allowed to overflow into other lives and the outcome was the conversion of his little community to that God, who had been his Savior. Strange to relate, a copy of the bible and one of "common prayer," as used by the Church of England, had survived these dreadful vicissitudes and to these the lonely seamen turned for comfort in the hour of his need.

Adams died in 1829, but others were raised up to fill his place, and the lovely little community prospered and multiplied, far away from a tempting world, until its numbers outgrew the contracted limits of an island barely 5 miles in circumference and with but 600 acres of arable land. The rest was rocky mountain, 1,000 feet above the sea at its greatest altitude.

Norfolk Island had been a penal station of England and was about to be abandoned as out of the way and insufficient for convict settlement purposes. This fine little island, treble the size of Pitcairn, was turned over as a free gift by the British government to the 194 Islanders, who agreed to occupy it instead of their own beloved but now too narrow possessions. It was a hard strain upon them to leave the spot of their birth, natural and spiritual, and the graves of many of their kindred, for a strange place, more than a thousand miles away. But they recognized the necessity at last and in 1850 the paternal government transferred them, bag and baggage, to their new homes.

Ready furnished houses, splendid roads, abundant stock, farms ready cleared, rich soil and best wishes of everybody soon took the romance away. They began to trade with the bad outside world; became a part of frequent call and visitation; and, about the 700 or 800 people of the mingled English and Tahiti blood now occupying Norfolk have become very like other worldlings. The last importation to the island has been a Methodist organization, that breaks up forever the external unity, of what had been from the beginning a church founded on the old bible and prayer book taken from the Bounty. Norfolk Island, with a few more "sects" in full blast and the heart burnings that follows the setting up of rival organizations, becomes so painfully a common thing that I don't care to write any more about it.

The President's Vetoes.

The veto by the President of the innumerable private bills granting pensions to men who could not obtain them under our liberal laws meets with the unqualified commendation of the people. These vetoes give an assurance long needed of care and courage in the White House which will protect the Treasury from Congress and the lobbyists.

The suggestion comes from Washington that some democrats who, with republicans, have suffered from the President's painstaking investigation of the private bills, will send themselves to some plan for overriding the President's objections. We trust this is not true. We have no idea that a two thirds vote can be secured in these cases, but we regret to see any disposition among democrats to antagonize the President when he is so clearly right.

That the republicans should oppose him is natural and is expected, but democrats require their Representatives in Congress to stand firm in this pension business, and roll back the tide of communism which, under the guise of pensions, private and general, threatens to sweep away all the barriers erected to protect the treasure of the people from the hands of the politicians. Representatives must not allow their interest in one person to blind them to the interests of the whole people, and on these pension matters at least the democratic party should be a unit in opposition. —[C. J.]

Mothers.

There are upon the skin of every human being, child and adult alike, 2,300,000 pores. Through these pores is the form of insensible perspiration, is expelled more than one quarter of the nourishment taken into the system. The importance of keeping open these perspiration valves upon a child's body is second only to that of digesting the food eaten. It was to open the pores of the skin and to assimilate the food that Dr. Pitcher formulated Castoria. Loose bowels, constipation, fevers and eruptions which are so constant among infants and children, and which kill one-third of all children before they are five years old, arise principally from these two causes. It is from the wonderful results attendant upon the use of Castoria in regulating the stomach and bowels and keeping open the pores of the skin, that Castoria acquired its world wide reputation. With plenty of water for the body, pure air for the lungs, and Castoria to assimilate the food, there need be no unaccounted for sickness among children. Castoria is a vegetable prescription without morphine or other narcotic property. Thirty years extensive use has given it a history never attained by another medicine.

AFRAID OF THE VETO.—Mr. Mann—"Let's see, Tom, you were at Gettysburg weren't you?"

Tom—"No, sir; wasn't in the army at all."

Mr. Mann—"Why, I have always heard that you served during the whole war. Where did you lose your arm?"

Tom—"Took off in a saw mill."

During the conversation Fogg is eyeing Tom with amazement staring out of his eyes. Mr. Mann having retired, he says, "Tom, what do you mean, lying in that way? You rascal! You know a cannon ball took off your arm and that you have a war record that any man ought to be proud of."

Tom—"Yes, I was proud of it once; but since the soldiers have taken to begging for pensions and offices, I'm ashamed to let anybody know I was in the army. I don't want to disgrace my children, you know. You'll oblige me by not giving me away."

—[Poston Transcript.]

Mrs. Caroline Benedict, of Syracuse, N. Y., aged 60, died of starvation, having fasted for fifty-three days, during which time she tasted no solid food, drank no water, subsisting on a cup of weak tea and a few teaspoonfuls of whisky.

It is now stated that Huntington will build his new Chesapeake & Ohio road southward from the Ohio river, instead of northward from Nashville, as at first proposed. The charge is said to be in the interest of economy in transportation of supplies and material.

A fearful earthquake occurred in New Zealand last month, followed by volcanic eruptions, which devastated a great deal of the country and killed people by the hundreds. A whole range of mountains 120 miles long belched forth flame and lava and the atmosphere was darkened for days by flying dust.

HON. JAMES B. MCCREARY.

We present above, a pretty fair picture, of our distinguished Congressman. Washington life has agreed with him and has added many pounds to his already liberal avoirdupois, notwithstanding the hard work he has undergone, for no member has served his district better or been more faithful to his constituents than Gov. McCreary. The aspirants for his position recognize the invincible hold that he has on the people of his district and appreciating utter the uselessness of measuring lances with him, have with one accord decided to give him a clear field, an honor not accorded to any man in the 8th for many a year. Under this state of case it would seem useless to hold a convention to nominate him, but he prefers, like the true democrat that he is, to have the endorsement of his party and the recognized right to carry its banner. Therefore a call has been made by the constituted authorities for county conventions to be held at 2 P. M. at the Court House in the various counties of the district on July 31, to appoint delegates to the convention to be held at Danville, August 5th, to nominate a democratic candidate for Congress in this district.

The representation will be one delegate for each 100 votes cast for Knott and one for each fraction over 50. Anderson cast 1,055 votes for him and will be entitled to 11 votes; Boyle with 1,069, 11; Garrard 1,040, 10; Jackson 165, 2; Jessamine 1,216, 12; Laurel 678, 7; Lincoln 1,438, 14; Madison 2,215, 22; Mercer 1,045, 10; Owsley 191, 2; Rockcastle 782, 8; Shelby 1,473, 15 and Spencer 672, 7; total, 131 delegates.

The State Teachers' Association was in session in Louisville last week. It passed a resolution favoring Federal aid to education and appointed a committee to find out from each candidate for Congress his views upon this question and to have the same published in the newspapers of his district. The object in view may be well enough, but it strikes us that the resolution smacks a little too much of politics. —[Richmond Herald.]

A party of nine ladies and gentlemen strayed away from the main body of their party in Mammoth Cave last week and were lost. Their lights went out and they wandered around in the darkness all day and were finally found sitting on the banks of Echo river in a fearful state of excitement.

—Capt. Alex G. Bawner, of Frankfort, is dead of cancer.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

For Superior Judge—JOSEPH BARBOUR.
For Circuit Judge—J. W. ALCOCK.
Commonwealth's Attorney—R. C. WARREN.
County Judge—T. W. VANCE.
County Clerk—J. P. BAILEY.
County Clerk—G. B. COOPER.
Sheriff—T. D. NEWLAND.
County Attorney—D. R. CARPENTER.
Assessor—E. D. KENNEDY.
Jailer—E. M. OWENS.
Superintendent Common Schools—J. A. BOOLE.
Surveyor—F. B. HOWARD.

SENATOR VANCE is credited with making the unanswerable query at a New York demonstration "If the spoils do not belong to the victors to whom do they belong?" An opposition paper immediately revived the old story that Mr. Vance evidently thought they belonged to him and his family, as he had secured fat government positions for 16 of them. The Senator denied that so many of his kith and kin were drawing the public money and says that but three of them are on the Federal payroll. A contemporary very properly remarks, however, that if they were all of as good material as the Senator, a house-full of the family would improve the governmental service.

PARSON DOWNE, of the Boston Baptist church, is a sweet-scented scrub. Recently he was tried and convicted before a church council of being too intimate with a female member of his flock. Now another sister comes to the front with a little cherub, which she claims owes its paternity to him, and has brought suit against him in the courts for bastardy. The lecherous rascal has done a great deal of late to bring the ministry into disrepute, though he claims that he is innocent and the victim of blackmail, which is too thin.

THE resolution of Mr. Morrison, which requires that when the surplus in the U. S. Treasury shall exceed $100,000,000, it shall be the duty of the Treasurer to appropriate it to the payment of the interest-bearing debt in sums of not less than $10,000,000 per month, passed the House by a vote of 207 to 67. All the Kentucky Congressmen voted for it, as they should have done.

THE Hon. Oscar Turner says that he will submit his candidacy for Congress to a primary election, to be held on the general August election day, and that in the event of defeat, he will abide the result and support the nominee, whoever he may be. Mr. Turner should not, however, be allowed to dictate to the party the mode it shall use for naming its candidates.

DR. CHENEULT writes that we were in error in stating that preference of admission is given at the Lexington Asylum to pay patients and that the contrary is true. He further says that the institution is crowded to the walls. The Legislature was asked to appropriate a small amount to increase its capacity, but in its wisdom it saw proper to refuse.

PROF. E. STONE WIGGINS bobs serenely up, to make another prediction of a fearful storm. It is to occur the 29th of September, when the war of the elements will be greater than ever known. As E. Stone will be remembered only for making a former prediction of a storm that never materialized, his prophecy is not likely to create great alarm.

CLEVELAND is cutting down his home expenses. Heretofore the butter furnished the White House has cost $1 a pound, but the old man has caused the price to be reduced to 60 cents, owing to his increased expenses and the fact that Frankie is monstrous fond of butter and gets away with a good deal of it.

It is rumored that Boss Powderly, of the Knights of Labor, is to be the democratic candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania. The Knights are confident he can be elected, but those gentlemen are always sanguine and generally overestimate their importance and strength.

THERE are 65 consulates still held by the republicans, notwithstanding there are a 1,000 good democrats willing and ready to take their places. Turn them and all the rascals out, Grover. We are tired of this Mugwump business.

As Hon. J. J. Nesbitt has withdrawn from the race for Superior Judge in Judge Quincy Ward's district, the latter gentleman has a walk-over and there will be nobody to buy the delegates that go to such conventions to sell out.

TIRING of sending lawyers to represent them in conventions, the democracy of Pendleton ignored that profession in naming delegates to the Superior Court convention and the improvement, if any, will be duly noted.

A NEW judge and a new prosecuting attorney are what is needed in Rowan. There is no use in keeping the militia there, if the court is to be as farcical an exhibition as before, and it promises to be.

FIVE hundred Georgia convicts employed at mining having refused to work another lick orders have been issued to starve them until they are willing to yield to authority.

A severe hail and rain storm did great damage in Hardin county.

Gov. Cantrill's youngest child died at Fredonia, N. Y., where it had taken been for its health.

A spark from a passing locomotive set fire to a six-acre field of ripe wheat near Wilkesville, N. Y., the other day. The grain was entirely consumed.

NOTES OF CURRENT EVENTS.

ROCK CASTLE SPRINGS.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

Since last writing we have been joined by a large number of guests, with the exception of a few, from the cities. The crowd to-day is larger than a year ago by a good many and a large hack load is looked for to-night. Everyone enjoys himself to the fullest extent and a livelier or more jolly crowd can be found nowhere. The program of the day is as follows: At 7 A. M. the guests are awakened by the Brass Band; immediately after breakfast a game of tennis is played; then rowing or rambling until 9:30, after which the crowd is preceded by the Band down to "Bebe's Grotto," a cool resort under one of the mountains, near by which runs a stream of as clear water as Col. D. G. Slaughter tells of at his resort. For an hour or so the concert lasts until the joyful sound of the dinner bell is heard. After dinner we do as we choose; a good many sleep; at 4 the river is dotted with bathers; at 5 the concert on the river is given and at 8:30 the dance begins, thus giving us abundant time for each amusement. Who wouldn't be satisfied with a day spent in such a way?

A pretty sight from the hotel is a row of brightly-painted, shapely row-boats, made here by a genius of the mountains after a model of his own construction. Tuesday the handsome excursion boat, "Rock Castle Rover," just completed, was launched. It will carry 25 or 30 passengers and has the resemblance of a regular ocean boat. It is designed for transporting picnic and excursion parties from the hotel to the various places of interest and beauty up and down the river, and will make daily trips. This will afford a greater amount of real pleasure to visitors here, especially those who have eyes for the most charming presentations of rugged and picturesque nature. I heard a lady praying fervently for language adequate to describe to friends at home her impressions of the lovely scenery which a walk around the Arcade and Palisade opened to her astonished view.

A gentleman who has traveled all over our own country and Europe says it is his deliberate judgment that no finer scenery is found in the world within a space of a few miles than that presented here. The seventeen distinct varieties of the fern family which grow in great profusion all over our country, besides a counterpart in wild loveliness for all the rarest flowers in cultivation, sweetly nestling within the shady nooks and climbing down the jutting precipices, "loving their sweetness upon the desert air," adds pleasure to lovers of botanical study. The shades from the giant forest trees and the tall, overhanging bluffs, with the cool, refreshing breezes which constantly pass through the valleys of the river, renders it possible for us to be continually on the move at all hours of the day; and the lovely moonshine nights are simply delicious for courting and grand for sleeping.

Having attempted to give you an idea of nature's liberal and bounteous contributions to our happiness and perfect contentment, "what is the matter with" the scores of beautiful women we have met and beneath whose sweet smiles we have blushed as only modest country lads can blush. Not to be invidious in distinction and confessing a nervous tremor at the effort, I am bound to point the names of a few who have been especially "sweet" to the boys and to your timid scribe: There are the motherly Mrs. Newman, Mrs. Coppin, Mrs. Klaw, Mrs. Marshall, Mrs. Hays, Mrs. Murphy, Mrs. Peckinpaugh, Mrs. Anderson, our charming hostess, Mrs. Campbell, all of whom have added to our pleasure and seemed to have approved of our deportment and presence. And the charming young ladies, of whom Misses Hays, Grainger, Curry, Gilmore, Newman, Campbell, Curry, Snyder, Coppin, O'Sullivan are a few who shall ever be looked upon as our best "friends," as Miss Grainger says. Among the gallant beaux, besides the "Stanford boys," present are Messrs. Hugh Boyd, Dr. B. Benedict, Dan O'Sullivan, Charlie Sutfield, Dick Wade, Dr. Barbour, Rev. H. T. Daniel, H. Watterman, Matt Woodson and the great and only Dan Garrard.

Last night the stage brought in Dr. Cheatham, F. O. Anderson and several others from Louisville, and Mr. Geo. B. Marshall and wife, of Cincinnati. To-morrow night a big load is expected from Louisville, Lawrenceburg, Lexington, etc. Among them are Col. Watt Cochran, Judge Finley and five society belles from Louisville. This seems to be a young ladies' carnival at Rock Castle. As Manager Campbell said in a letter to a friend, which I accidentally read: "What more do you want besides the earth, than a guarantee of twenty pretty girls, plenty of hungry fish, boats to burn, bait for the asking, ripe chickens and not a bay within six miles of the Springs?"

Quoit pitching is one of the very enjoyable amusements here, and the club, under the management of Mr. W. H. Newman, with experts like Rev. Mr. Noland, Messrs. Klaw, Sutfield, Marshall and Dr. Barbour make the contests interesting. Croquet also has a prominent place in the amusements, as does ten pins.

The open river bathing, first inaugurated in Kentucky at this place six years ago, is a feature which can not be approached by any other resort in the State, and ranks first among the attractions of the place. A pretty girl, clothed in a gaily-decked, neatly-cut bathing suit, up to her snowy neck in emerald water, swimming (a good many trying to learn), is a thing that makes us glad that we are living to enjoy. If Tom Hill, Master Peyton, Doc Carpenter, Henry Wilson and a few other Stanford "chestnuts" were only here the crowd would be complete. Can't they come? E. C. W.

—The Senate has amended the House Mexican Pension bill and passed it. It gives $3 per month to all survivors under certain conditions.

IN MEMORIAM.

After a most painful illness of five weeks duration, Mrs. Lizzie P. James, wife of G. W. James, departed this life July 6th. The deceased was born at Dallas, Pulaski county, Ky., June 19th, 1841, and was scarcely in the prime of life. Her father was Major John Bobbitt, who emigrated from the State of Virginia to Kentucky and married the widow Hays, daughter of Thomas Stigall, Esq. She was of ancestors somewhat remarkable on both sides. The Stigalls were noted for their love of money and the acquisition of property and the Bobbitts for their mechanical skill, attainments in letters and the valor displayed in the army of Northern Virginia in defense of the "Lost Cause." I have been informed by an ex Confederate soldier now living in this county that one whole company of General Lee's army was composed of her relatives. She was educated at Crab Orchard and Danville and at eighteen was considered one of the most beautiful women in Lincoln county. She leaves five children to lament her irreparable loss. All of them are exceedingly bright and intelligent and some of them the most talented and brilliant in Kentucky. Could medical skill, tender care, vigilant attention and the prayers of both saint and sinner averted the stroke of death, this noble christian woman and benefactor of the poor would have lived forever. But an all-wise Providence decreed it otherwise, and we must bow in humble submission to His will. The funeral procession was the largest ever seen in Crab Orchard. The wealthy in their long line of carriages rode in splendor, but I have no doubt the sincerest mourners in that procession was the vast crowd of poor people, black and white, who had been so often the recipients of her bounty, many of whom had often gone with their sacks to her house to have them filled with meal and flour, at the Dix River Mills, when they feared to approach the sterner miller, who was grinding for wages at the mill. Nor was her charity confined to the county of her residence, but objects of charity living in distant States often had cause to bless her name. In all my unequal contests against power and money, and a bitter persecution, she was my true friend, and it is one of my remaining joys to know that she lived to see me victorious, and the embers of persecution expire, extinguished by an energy that could no longer be resisted. She was provided with a magnificent home, elegantly furnished; and no woman in Lincoln county had more affectionate influence over a dotting husband, and no woman had more absolute control of the purse, nor had every wish more completely gratified. The elegant splendor in which she lived, her untimely summons to the bar of God, has taught me the utter folly of all earthly pursuits. If you devote your time to the accumulation of wealth, the acquisition of honors, or the pursuit of fame, even in the event of your success, what is your reward? At best a name! Praise when the ear has grown too dull to hear; gold when the senses which it should please are dead; wreaths, when the brow which they cover has grown gray! The loftiest peaks are most wrapped in clouds and snow. There is nothing worth seeking for but heaven.

Willie, can you ever forget that your mamma said on her dying bed that "heaven would not be heaven without Willie?" George Lee, can you ever forget that your sainted mamma asked on her dying bed, "is George Lee here?" At roll call at the judgment bar, when she shall ask "is George Lee here?" O, may you so live that you will be able to say, "yes, mamma, we are all here!" There is no doubt about your mamma being with her God. No snow flake ever fell from the clouds more pure. Heaven was made for just such angelic creatures as she, and she was made for heaven. Let the remembrance of her gentleness, her tender affection, her angelic sweetness, ever be your beacon light—your guiding star, and where your dear mamma now is you will go also. For all lovely and gentle traits that adorn female character, and make the peerless, true woman, I challenge the world to produce her superior! I would rather be her brother than to have been a Roman Senator.

"If all our hopes and all our fears,
Were prisoned in life's narrow bound,
If travelers through this veil of tears,
We saw no better world beyond,
Oh! what could check the rising sigh,
What earthly thing could pleasure give?
Oh! who would venture then to die?
Oh! who could then endure to live?"

Were life a dark and desert moor,
Were mists and clouds eternal spread,
Their gloomy veil behind, before,
And tempests thunder overhead,
Where not a sunbeam breaks the gloom,
And not a flower smiles beneath,
Who could exist in such a tomb,
Who dwell in darkness and in death?

And such were life without the ray,
From our divine religion given,
'Tis this that makes our darkness day,
'Tis this that make our earth a heaven.
Bright is the golden sun above,
And beautiful the flowers that bloom,
And all is joy and all is love,
Reflected from a world to come."

LECTURE.—Mr. Lula Nield will lecture at the Christian church here next Sunday evening 8 o'clock, on temperance. She always succeeds in making even this well-worn subject interesting. Let the church be filled.

COL. SLAUGHTER advertises a Grand Banquet and Birthday Dinner at Dripping Springs for Thursday, 22d. The dinner is in honor of one of his guests, will be served in the large and airy ball room and the best that can be had in Kentucky. A ball at night and a display of fireworks are on the program. Everybody invited.

CAR BREAKING.—Bud Gentry, alias Alex. Maxton, and John Henry Martin, negroes, were lodged in jail Wednesday for breaking into a freight car. They were found in the car when it reached Rowland and Marshal Newland was sent for. Their story is that they broke into the car down the road and simply did it to get a ride unmolested. If they stole anything it has not yet been discovered. One of the men attempted to get away, but Faverly Hamilton pursued and captured him away off in Hayden's corn field. They will be tried to-morrow.

News has been received from Golden City, Mo., of the death of Mrs. Lucinda Gentry, mother-in-law of Mr. S. R. Raney. She was born in Madison county and lived in Lincoln for many years.

J. C. THOMPSON, the Lancaster, Ky., Jeweler, is importing direct from the Old Country a large line of musical boxes, bique and fancy goods for holiday trade. They are expected to arrive by Nov. 1.

CUTTING.—D. R. Carpenter and T. P. Hill, Jr., went to Waynesburg yesterday to try S. D. Gooch for cutting a man named Singleton with intent to kill. We learn that the wounded man is in a precarious condition.

THE faithful old family mule of Mr. S. J. Embry wandered off from home Wednesday night and getting on the railroad track where the new street crosses it, was run over and killed by the cars. Mrs. Embry is disconsolate over her great loss.

CYCLONE.—During the storm Wednesday morning, a hurricane swooped down on a strip of land about 50 feet wide and half a mile long on the farms of A. D. Root and J. F. Cash and literally wiped up the trees, corn and fences from it. A swath cut through a wheat field by a twin binder could not have been more thorough in its work or better defined than the course of the storm.

THE Kirksville Fair will be held next Friday and Saturday, 23rd and 24th. Secretary J. B. Walker writes us that the K. C. will leave here at the usual hour on the mornings of those days, but will be held at Paint Lick till 5:30 P. M. so that those who go from this section can return at night. Conveyances will meet the train at Paint Lick for the fair and return with passengers in the afternoon. The program this year is especially attractive and we hope many of our citizens will attend.

ESCAPED.—Will Dunn, who was some months ago adjudged a lunatic, and lodged in the Asylum at Lexington, escaped from that institution Sunday afternoon and made his way on foot across the country to his father's near here. Fearing that he might do himself or the family harm, Mr. Dunn came to town Wednesday and got the sheriff to go out and bring him in. He offered no resistance and readily consented to come to town, where he was put under guard. It was at first decided to put him in jail, but the sheriff doubted his right to do so, and permitted him to return to his father's under guard. He talks very rationally and is evidently much improved. In fact there are those who think he is less crazy now than he has been for years. For obvious reasons he was not permitted to see his wife. He was taken back to the Asylum yesterday by Charley McRoberts.

KINGS MOUNTAIN.—Sheriff Menefee's raid on Kings Mountain resulted in the capture of two more negroes, John Brice and George Woody, who are accused of using threatening language and brandishing their weapons when Singleton was killed, though not directly guilty of the murder themselves. While there Mr. Menefee arrested Jno. R. Harnes, one of the fiends who deal out death and liquid damnation there in defiance of law, on a bench warrant for violation of the liquor laws. Judge Varner and County Attorney Carpenter being on hand he was at once tried on 16 cases presented under the law prohibiting the sale of liquors within two miles of Point Pleasant Church and fined in the aggregate $480. He was unable to pay or replevy and was ordered to jail. Jim Sims and Tusco Waters were given charge of him and they took him by home to change his clothing, when he gave them the slip and is still at large. The men deserve to be punished for such criminal carelessness. The deputy himself is not wholly without blame. John B. Clark, the fellow who used to run the Commercial Hotel here, is also keeping a grocery there, but he put up the amount of his fine in cash and was permitted to remain. Sheriff Menefee tells us that he found while searching for the negro murderers three men in as many shanties that were badly wounded in rows that were never reported. One fellow is literally riddled with buckshot. The whole set of whisky dealers ought to be wiped out and we trust that the good citizens, now that they have been fully aroused, will drive the last rascal engaged in the traffic into jail or from the county.

Hon. Joseph Barbour was in our city on Friday and Saturday. He was much pleased with our county and people and, in turn, our people were pleased with him. He is an affable gentleman and well qualified to be Superior Judge of this district. We hope that all good democrats will vote for him and not become lukewarm because the majority is large, or on account of the little racket at Lebanon, for which he was in no way to blame.—[Lancaster News.]

—Maxwell, the murderer of Preller, at St. Louis, has been sentenced to be hung August 27.

RELIGIOUS.

—About 1,000 people attended the dedication of the beautiful Methodist church at Sharpesburg. Dr. H. C. Morrison, of Russellville, preached, and at the close took up a collection of $1,071, but only asked $1,000 to pay the debt.—[Paris Kentuckian.]

—The Louisville ministers have decided to boycott the Sunday papers, but they will return to their hash when the same papers let up on publishing their sermons or noticing them in any way. Preachers like most other people, like to see their names in print.

DANVILLE, BOYLE COUNTY.

—Joseph Goings, the sorely-trying young colored person on the subject of selling bitters, was finally acquitted Tuesday by a jury of respectable citizens. There was no evidence of any weight to justify a conviction, and it is difficult to see how a conscientious jury could have done anything else.

—The republican county committee met here this week and endorsed the candidacy of Captain Whitehouse for jailer and that of G. D. Batten for assessor. Mr. F. M. Cox, though a republican and a candidate for county judge, did not receive an endorsement, having accepted the nomination for the office he seeks at the hands of the prohibitionists a few weeks ago.

—Linnetta Springs, near Junction City, is becoming a place of frequent resort for our young people. —In response to a telegram from Adjutant General Castleman Judge Owsley held an election at the City Hall Tuesday evening to choose a Captain and Lieutenant for the Owsley Rifles. Lt. W. J. Kinnaird was chosen Captain and Sam M. Duncan first Lieutenant. Immediately after the election the newly-created officers did the correct thing by the boys in adjoining to Stevens', where a lay out of ice-cream, &c., was partaken of in a highly satisfactory manner. The boys are ready to go to Rowan, and it is highly probable they will be gratified.

—The fire losses in the United States and Canada for the first half of 1886 are estimated at nearly $54,000,000, or $3,000,000 greater than the losses during the same period last year.

BOURNE!

—FROM WHENCE—

No Traveler Returns Sick!

In these tight times each buyer should consult his own interests. Why should you give one merchant 50¢ for an article when you can buy the same thing from another for 40¢. To do this is not justice to yourself or family.

In the next place, you should be sure to get good articles. Poor goods are dear at any price. Nowhere is this more so than in Medicines. You might as well pay 50¢ an ounce for saw dust as for inert medicines.

Bourne has just received his large stock of Medicines of all kinds. Every article fresh from the manufacturers. He now has the thickest and cheapest selection of fancy goods, show case articles, &c., &c. The celebrated Lammie's Spectacles and eye glasses a specialty. The best brands of mixed paints—every can warranted. Splendid Jewelry, sewing machine goods, anglers' goods, artists' goods, chromos, frames, lamps, brushes, books of all kinds, stationery, a thousand articles for the dear grandmas, maiden aunts and the smartest baby in the business—all at

The Best Waterproof Coat.

DON'T FAVOR A HALFWAY JOB.

A gentleman had occasion to send his little daughter up to the garret for some article which he wanted. The child soon returned crying; and upon being asked what the trouble was, replied, "that the snow had sifted in upon the garret stairs and she had slipped down and hurt herself."

"Well, did you get what I told you?" inquired the father.

She replied that she had not.

"Well, then," he exclaimed, starting up. "I'll go; I guess I ain't afraid of a little snow."

After he had gone the child observed that she hoped papa would fall just a little to pay him for laughing at her.

Soon afterwards a distant bumping and rolling was heard, accompanied with the sound of suppressed wrath. The family listened with awakened interest, but the object of their solicitude was heard above whispering quite soberly, as though nothing had happened.

He crossed two rooms above and as he approached the top of the stairs, thundered out:

"Open the chamber door! Next you know, you'll have me tumble down here and break my neck. It's so dark now!" but the sentence was never finished.

Trip went his heels and rolling, thumping and swearing he sprawled his six feet of length upon the kitchen floor, where he was greeted with bursts of merriment from the collected family. He lay quite still for a moment, and then shouted out:

"Open the cellar door; I may as well put her through, clear to the bottom."

HE DIDN'T WAKE HER.

On a certain occasion Ferguson was wending his way homeward, sorely troubled in his mind over the curtain lecture he knew was in store for him, and casting about for some means of evading it. Suddenly a bright idea was evolved from his befuddled brain. He would slip quietly into the house and get into bed without awaking his wife.

Accordingly he carefully undressed in the lower hall, stole gently upstairs and crept into bed, with his face turned toward the outside. He mentally congratulated himself upon his success thus far and went to sleep. When he awoke in the morning he dared not look at his wife, and after lying still for a few minutes, and not hearing any noise from her, he concluded she was still asleep. He then determined to arise very quietly, carry his clothes into the hall, dress there, and go down town to business without waiting for breakfast. He was successful in this, and meeting the colored servant girl downstairs, he said:

"Eliza, you can tell your mistress I expect to be very busy to-day, and therefore I didn't stop to eat breakfast with her this morning."

"Law sakes, Mr. Ferguson!" said Eliza, "missus done gone away yesterday morning, and said she wouldn't be back till this evening."

EQUAL TO THE EMERGENCY.

"Look out!" said Mrs. Cleveland, as her husband tripped merrily across the floor of the bridal chamber in his bare feet. "If you step on that thing it'll flip up and hit you."

"What'll hit me, my precious one?" asked the President.

"Why, that round thing on the floor there."

"That's my collar, dear," said the President.

"Your collar! Gracious!" exclaimed his charming young bride. "I thought it was the hoop of a fur barrel."

"Now, that reminds me," said Mr. Cleveland, "you'll have to make me a box to keep my collars in."

"Yes," replied the blushing creature, as she turned toward the wall. "Wait till we get back to the White House and I'll trim a beer vat in pink ribbon for you."

GREAT ON DEFINING.

When I used to go to school I had a thumb by the name of Brown. He was one of those fellows who are forever joking, and are never in clover except when poking fun at those who can pay them back in Monks' coin, or on others, whose witty points are few and whose jokes are like angels' visits. We were reviewing grammar one afternoon, Brown sitting between myself and a boy named Dunham, who depended on those who sat near him to "tell" him. My answer was: "The masculine gender is that which denotes animals of the male kind." Then Brown followed with the definition of the feminine. The question for the definition of the neuter then came to Dunham. I could see Dunham lean over, while Brown whispered to him, and he arose with "The neuter gender is that which denotes animals that are neither male nor female." There was more than a furore, for there were a few roars.

AN IMPARTIAL JUDGMENT.

"Pretty?" No, I won't say baby is pretty," declared a young mother, "for I can speak of him impartially, though he is my own, and that's more than most mothers can do. He has lovely blue eyes, perfect in shape, hair like the morning sunshine; mouth—well, no rosebud could be sweeter; complexion divinely fair; nose just too cunning for anything; in fact, he's faultless. But I won't say he's pretty."

The people who give tone to society seldom give anything else.

"YANKEE DOODLE."

One of the earliest traditions about the word Yankee would assign it to old Farmer Hastings, who lived in Cambridge, Mass., in 1713, and with whom "Yankee" older meant excellent cider, or "Yankee" beans excellent beans. The term stuck to the old man, with whom the Harvard students of that day ran up lively bills, and soon came in college slang to mean foolish or weak-minded. In this contemptuous sense it was applied later to all New Englanders. For one hundred years American philologists have been trying to trace the term to an Indian source. It is not Indian, but Dutch. If one might characterize the relations between New England and the New Netherlands in the colonial period, he would say with Irving that the "Yankee despised the Dutchman, and the Dutchman abominated the Yankee." The Dutch verb "Yankee" means to snarl, wrangle, hanker after, and the noun "Yankee," howling cur, is perhaps the most expressive term of contempt in the whole language. Out of that acrimonious struggle between Connecticut and New Amsterdam came the nickname which has stuck to the descendants of the Puritans ever since. The air had been popular in England as early as 1730 under the name of "Fisher's Jig."

THE KLEPTO-BIBLIO-MANIA.

There seems to be a curious relation existing between biblio-mania and kleptomania. In the matter of books, it is not the poor and the needy who steal, but the wealthy men and women, who are amply able to gratify their literary tastes. There is certainly a fascination in the piled-up treasures of the mind, as in the gold of the pichoric bank-vaults; but it does surprise us—those of us who are not the victims of this klepto-biblio-mania—to be told by an eminent librarian that "ministers are not to be trusted in a library more than any one else." It was the same gentleman of long experience—and evidently of faith in human nature in the reverse ratio of the years he had served as a librarian—who unblushingly asserted: "I make it a rule not to trust any lady who is a lover of books!" In confirmation of this sad opinion, the librarian of the Long Island Historical Society Library says he had been warned by "the principal of the largest girls' seminary in Brooklyn"—that "they all steal." After the death of "a high-toned gentleman," another librarian found two hundred stolen volumes in his residence. In the light of such a showing, the suggestion that a black list of library thieves be prepared for the protection of librarians was a practical one, and such a precaution should be taken without delay.

A BIT OF STRING.

There is a large factory in New York which covers an entire block. Half a million of money wouldn't buy it; and it was built by a bit of cord not more than six inches long. Eight years ago a poor mechanic perfected an invention—the simplest thing on earth—and with his patent in his hand he went down town one day and called for the head of a house whose check was current for five figures anywhere in the street. The inventor offered to sell two-thirds of his patent for twenty thousand dollars if the house would bind itself to put one hundred thousand dollars into factories for producing the little thing he had invented. The firm signed papers in less than an hour from the time of hearing the proposal, and in another hour the inventor had converted the firm's check for twenty thousand dollars into greenbacks. Lots were bought, and a factory was erected. The business grew speedily to gigantic proportions, and at length the firm acquired all the rest of the block, and covered it with brick and mortar, and now the inventor is able to associate with the millionaires. The little globe fastener—a piece of cord about six inches long and a dozen little metal hooks or buttons—is the thing that was invented. So much for one man who was concerned in clothes. Others have made money out of them and lost it in other enterprises.

A HINDOO HUSBAND'S CREED.

"A man, both day and night, must keep his wife so much in subjection that she by no means be mistress of her own actions. A woman shall never go out of her house without the consent of her husband, and shall not eat until she has first served him with victuals (if it is medicine, she may take it before they eat); a woman shall never go to a stranger's house, and shall not stand at the door and must never look out of the window. If a woman, following her own inclinations, goes whithersoever she chooses, and does not regard the words of her master, such a woman shall be turned away. If a man goes on a journey, his wife shall not divert herself by play, nor see any public show, nor laugh, nor dress herself with jewels or fine clothes, nor see dancing, nor hear music, nor sit at the window, nor ride out, nor behold anything rare or choice, but shall fasten well the house-door and remain private; and shall not eat any dainty victuals, and shall not view herself in a mirror; she shall not exercise herself in any agreeable employment during the absence of her husband. If the wife have her own free will, notwithstanding she is of superior caste, she will go amiss." Such is the Hindoo idea of marriage.

ON THE ISTHMUS OF PANAMA.

The isthmus has the reputation of being one of the most unhealthy places upon the face of the globe. The town itself is a city of the dead and dying. There is never a day but what you can see some one in a coffin with two negroes staggering under the load. The dead are buried in a large cemetery known as Monkey Hill. The remark of the street peddler "Here to-day and somewhere else to-morrow," has been changed in Panama to "Here to-day and Monkey Hill to-morrow."

People die unknown, and it will not be until after the burial that friends learn of the demise. The death rate averages from four to twenty-five per day. Perhaps two of these each day are placed in rude, cheap coffins and given a Christian burial. The others are called by the natives "dumps," which allude to those bodies picked up in the streets. I saw one of such corpses lifted from a gutter a few days ago and thrown into a rough box. Placing this upon a wagon the driver was ordered to proceed to Monkey Hill Cemetery—the New Mount Hope cemetery, but always called by the former name. I followed the simple funeral cortege to the grave. The man who appeared to superintend the work said, "let go," and the two negroes led the coffin or box slide into the opening.

THE SUN AS AN INCENDIARY.

Dr. E. P. Roche, of Bath, Me., writes to the "Popular Science News" an account of a fire set in a druggist's window by the rays of the sun passing through a show bottle filled with colored alcohol, and he adds this suggestion in regard to forest fires. It is reasonable to assume that many fires originating in the woods are not caused by boys, gunners, or intentional, but by natural causes and the sun. It is a fact that most of our forest fires occur when the resin or gum is exuding in the warm season, and in forests chiefly composed of the soft woods or resinous trees, the pine, spruce, hemlock, and hemlock. It is true, and often observed, that these species of tree exude a resin that, in losing its volatile element, hardens, and for a short time before becoming opaque makes a very good magnifying lens, and powerful enough to set fire to very dry, punky materials. Admitting these conditions, then to start a forest fire in the dry season among resinous woods, we require the sun shining on one of these natural "sun-glasses" or exudations, and back of it, in the forest, some suitable material, as dead bark, wood, or best of all, that dead, dry, mealy condition of soft woods, caused by boring-insects, known as "powder-posted."

A WORD ABOUT INSECTS.

For millions of birds and fish insects serve as food. "All flesh is grass," in a literal sense; for take the plant louse, or aphid, whose bloated body appears to be merely an animated green bladder of the juices of the plant upon which it exists; this is eaten by the lady bug, which, in its turn, becomes the food of some bird or fish, whose flesh serves to nourish that great omnivorous animal, man. Were there no insects what would become of all the insectivorous birds, and still more of the fresh-water fish? An old hen confined in a coop with her chickens loose around her will clear a large space of insects in a short time; yet a spring chicken is considered a dainty, although a week previously it may have been rioting on a fare of crickets and caterpillars. In many tobacco plantations flocks of turkeys are turned into the field to eat off the tobacco worms; yet, what is better than a good roast turkey? Nay, in several places, if we are to believe travellers, men eat insects. A palm tree grub, well roasted, is considered a great delicacy in some countries; in others, grasshoppers, or rather locusts, are preferred. Insects also act as scavengers in removing decayed animal substances; others, again, rotten wood and decaying vegetable matter.

FOOD THE FATHERS ATE.

The people of the last generation, Dr. Hodges says, "knew nothing of luxury; they had the 'regular' and solid meals at noontime, which are said to be the foundation of the stability of character, and they enjoyed at least nine hours of sleep every day." How happy, indeed, are the men and women who are able to look back upon such a state of life, and how unhappy by contrast are those who remember a different state of things as the practice of the older generations, and suffer in their own lives its effects! To these unfortunate the tables of their fathers and mothers appear in their recollection burdened with unwholesome and scarcely nourishing dishes. The chief dish there is one of salted pork, whose contents have been shrivelled in the greasy frying-pan into indigestible scraps. There are potatoes, most frequently fried in the same grease as the pork, or else boiled; their starchy substance is expected to be the chief feature of the meal. There is hot bread, made of a poor quality of wheat flour. There are fried apples—not nourishing. There is tea, which has boiled long and long, its steamed leaves sunken round and round in the teapot preparatory to being poured out in black masses into cups for drinking. And to crown the feast, there is chocolate!

Experience has convinced me that, as a powerful purifier, it is very much superior to any other preparation of Sarsaparilla. All persons of scrofulous or consumptive tendencies, and especially delicate children, are sure to be greatly benefited by its use." J. W. Starr, Laconia, Iowa, writes: "For years I was troubled with scrofulous complaints. I tried several different preparations, which did me little, if any, good.
